"Inviting Invention" is a six-week series of performance explorations with performer/composer Deborah Henson-Conant and special guests from diverse fields, ranging from music to philosophy.

What is "Inviting Invention" Series? It's a six-week performance series hosted by Deborah Henson-Conant. Each week includes a different special guest. Each show combines performance, interview and onstage improvisation, inviting the audience into the worlds of creative invention and the alchemy of collaboration. Example: how is being a nuclear physicist like being a musician, and how can the two possibly create something together – right now – in front of an audience?
