

Maybe Someday

from "The Letter"

©1981 Deborah Henson-Conant

Moderato  $\text{♩} = 96$

1

The tall, sort of a me-di-unheight, just an inch a-bove my head when I'm wear-ing heels, oh I re-mem-ber Will-iam. I re-mem-ber the shin-y brown of his shoes, and the scuff marks on the toes, and the mud on the bot-tom of the souls, when he met me out in the rain, and the way he would look me up and down, when I walked out the door and I saw he was there and the way he took my sleeve and loosed my scarf... Maybe some - day we'll meet a - gain. The tides will turn. The sun will burn a gain, and some - day I will turn on the street and I'll see you. Then we'll climb to the top of the stairs; and you and I,

5

9

12

15

19

23

27

you and I can smile. We can smile and say that may - be some - day we'll meet a - gain. We'll pass in the rain at twi - light. We'll meet on a train by chance. When I've al-most for-got-ten, lost in a thought, then sud-den - ly there you'll be stand - ing some - where a - long the street.

31

35

39

43

You'll turn. Your eyes will burn a - gain, so sweet, you will smile as you reach for my shoul - der. You'll laugh as you loose my hair. And you and I will walk through the dark, up the stairs one by one to the top.

48

52

56

You and I, once a - gain, all the way. I swear!

61

You and I will be there on the top stair, as the tides turn. May-be some - day...